

LELOUP TRANSLATIONS

A sustainable and eco-friendly professional translation service

OUR PROJECT

Far from the current trend in mass-produced translations, LELOUP TRANSLATIONS endeavours to provide high-quality handwritten texts where feelings, passion, ideals and dreams count.

Our translations are made by professional translating workgroups of three translators – two native-speakers of the target language and one of the source language – which enables us to reach the closest lexical precision and the most appropriate rewording.

Our original method is complete with several commitments that enable us to achieve reliable, humane and sustainable translation services.

OUR COMMITMENTS

100% organic

- High quality handwritten texts
- No use of any translation software
- Translation as an art form which should be handcrafted
- Direct contact with the client to achieve the best understanding and a personalized adaptation of the text

Joint translations

Our workgroups are open to anyone wishing to learn the art of translation. Our guests are welcomed to collaborate freely and to participate in the current projects. In doing so we hope to share the translating process which the agencies try to keep secret in order to avoid the entrance of new competition in the translation market.

Sustainable translations

We have provided our services free of charge to some NGOs or development programs. By choosing us as your translation agency, you are investing directly in these development programs and you are enabling us to continue with our action!

Eco-friendly translations

Translators rely heavily on search engines. Common search engines use a lot of energy. We use search engines such as Ecosia, Ethicle, Forestle, which invest their profits in reforestation projects. Furthermore we use electronic or printed dictionaries whenever possible rather than online ones. The energy we use is provided by Ökostrom and is entirely produced from ecological sources.
