ORGANIZATION PROFILE

EPHIS IT SERVICE FOUNDATION is a non-profit organization whose mission is to inspire, engage and prepare youth through ICT programs designed to nurture skills necessary to succeed in a global environment, thereby preparing the next generation of innovators, creators and entrepreneurs for their benefit and the benefit of society. And also bridging the gap between the Northern and Southern part of Ghana.

It was founded in 2007 and was called Akoma foundation computer school in Tamale.

Akoma was financed by a Dutch organization called Strichingakoma in the Netherlands, managed by a Ghanaian. From 2007 to 2009 it trained about 50 youth who are now in organizations and some working on their own, it went through a lot of challenges and from different management to different management. Due to old age among the board in Netherlands they decided they can't finance Akoma hence making it difficult to run.

Looking at the Northern part of Ghana and the increase in growth of ICT in Tamale Akoma was then moved to Walewale in the same Northern Region for the same aim and mission and then renamed EPHIS IT SERVICE FOUNDATION.
