Achievements:

The project implementation contributed in the creation of capital assets for its beneficiaries in the following category of:-

a) Natural capital - stock of bee colony, a place to keep them (modern bee hives), biodiversification of environmental resources from community based forest favoring agro business enterprising in the project community;

- b) Human capital acquiring knowledge and skills of organic farming with bee keeping and fruit trees planting for sustainable household income generation and marketing expertise to ensure sustainability;
- c) Physical capital self help group provided human capital through group synergy for food production and home based marketing, KBT hives to source for honey harvesting, crops of honey, beeswax and other products, market opportunity for honey to village and urban traders, community based forest to improve on environment, soil conservation and better crop production with ensured soil moisture content within the project area;
- d) Social capital community moral and spiritual transformation, available labour from families, friends and networks, membership of groups and access to a wider society and market information;
- e) Financial capital assured cash earning from group savings, sales of farm produce, bee products, having regular savings and opportunity to access credits or grants from other sources to scale up bee keeping, organic faming and tree planting projects by the community.
- f) Moral, social and spiritual rehabilitation hope was restored into the community that suffered heartache and social deprivation from the LRA insurgency for nearly 21 years.
- g) Households and school supplies provided the community of Barlonyo were given humanitarian aids support from donations from Crossroads Foundation, Hong Kong.

Challenges:

The majority of our beneficiaries are people living with HIV/AIDS who require home based care support with referral directives to access further management at fully established health units from other places. The orphans are youth who dropped out of school and they are heads of families that would need vocational guidance to choose right career path that would empower as well enrich them with rewarding income opportunities to provide sustainable support to their families.

The funding support provided was very limited to accommodate many vulnerable community groups with genuine needs for assistance and the majority funding was a one time support only.

The official documents reached late which caused the delay in accessing of tax clearance from the government line ministries. This brought about incurrence of additional cost on the storage and handling sur charges against keeping the container in Mombasa Port for seven days by the Port Authorities. Again in Uganda we went through the same experience of meeting other costs against handling and ware housing surcharges on the consignment in Kampala for four months.

There was communication gap between the times of container departure from Hong Kong to Mombasa, especially the delivery of shipping documents sent through DHL which was received two and half weeks after the container had docked at Mombasa Port.

Remarkable Benefits:

The project registered the following benefits:-

- a) Women and girls within the project area were greatly inspired about how to invest their time and energy in meaningful and gainful activities regardless of their prevailing conditions and situation.
- b) Provided the opportunity for productive and less labour intensive economic activity for women and girls who are often times marginalized or underserved by the traditional cultural ethnic groups and other actors.
- c) Enabled women and youth especially girls involved in income generation as preparatory effort to family or community leadership and inheritance management when they lose paternal parents.
- d) The communities of Barlonyo experienced trauma healing and hope as the result of humanitarian aids supplies donated by Crossroads Foundation.
- e) The community school supplies were given to aid education support of one primary school in Barlonyo.
- f) Ogur Health Centre IV received donated medical equipment and supplies.

Conclusion and Recommendations:

The activities were successfully implemented because of the level of commitment and participation of the local community.

Due to limited funding not all community members were able to access the support, which therefore calls for more support to expand the project coverage to reach many community groups.

The project envisages establishing community book café in the near future to provide learning opportunities to children and adults to improve level of their literacy and numeracy with access to computer and internet technology.

The community desperately needs safe water for domestic use and irrigation to support farming activities to generate enough food and more income.

The alarming needs for foster care and education support by orphans, calls for more support from the government, charity organizations and international donor communities who feel led to share their financial resources to ensure these young generations have a future.

The organization is planning to establish children village to cater for Kindergarten (Nursery and Primary) and Vocational Skills Development Training Centre in the near future to help put many vulnerable children back at school.
The organization looks forward to expand their humanitarian aids support services into South Sudan and Eastern DRC in the near future as resources will allow.
